

VisiCalc c. 1979

- First Electronic spreadsheet
- Created by Dan Bricklin and Bob Frankston
- Two months of development time
- The original program was 32k in size
- Originally released for the Apple II for $100, Apple II cost $2000
- Sold over 700,000 copies in six years
- Defined as a “Killer App”
- Superseded by Lotus 1-2-3 in 1983

Entry Contents

Entry Type:
(V) = Value
(L) = Label
(-) = Repeating Label

Current cursor coordinate

Entry Line

Prompt Line

Edit Line:
Light block is edit cue

Row and Column Labels

Label

Repeating Label
(-)

Cursor

Screen split into two vertical windows

Recalculation Order Indicator
R = across rows
C = across columns

! indicates sheet is being recalculated

Memory Indicator:
Number of K memory available, M indicates out of room.

Right-Aligned Format (/FR)

Dollars-and-cents Format (/FS)

Integer Format (/FI)

